

Caption quality of TV programs is crucial. Without accurate captioning, it is pointless to caption TV programs. Misspellings, garbled captions, mistimed captions make it difficult to understand a television program. In my experience, the Discovery channel specials programming is a prime example of poor quality captions due to significant misspellings--for example: "Columbus: Secrets from the Grave", "Nefertiti Resurrected", "Colosseum: A Gladiator's Story", etc. Additionally, the FX channel's "Nip/Tuck" (tuesdays 10pm eastern) and "Rescue Me" (wednesdays 10pm eastern) programs all showings have delayed captions--captions are displayed 2-3 seconds after the actors have spoken.

Lastly...**everything** on television should be captioned and captioned properly.

Thank you...
